How do I extract the integers from the tuple to be added to the return value of append to be displayed? For example, I have an arbitrary list of tuples which I'm trying to add to a list like this: list_of_tuples = [(3,2), (4,0),(5,4), (6,0)] The answer should be: [3, 2, 4, 0, 5, 4, 6, 0] A: You can use a list comprehension for that. >>> [tuple(int(x) for x in i) for i in list_of_tuples] [(3, 2), (4, 0), (5, 4), (6, 0)] Output >>> [tuple(int(x) for x in i) for i in list_of_tuples] [(3, 2), (4, 0), (5, 4), (6, 0)] A: You can use a list comprehension to transform a list of tuples into a list of lists.

Just make sure you have the list-comprehension as the innermost loop: for tuple in list_of_tuples: for i in tuple: print(i) # Output: # 3 # 2 # 4 # 0 # 5 # 4 # 6 # 0 This is then equivalent to: lst = [] for tuple in list_of_tuples: lst.append([int(x) for x in tuple]) Another way is to use the reduce function: import functools; print(functools.reduce(list, [int(x) for x in i]) # Output: # [3, 2, 4, 0, 5, 4, 6, 0] 50b96ab0b6
